Cat Guilt expresses our feline friends' whimsical opinions on many matters including food related guilt, the presumption of royalty, and guilt from leaving a cat outside.

About the Author Henry Sloan grew up on a farm on the water near the southern Delaware beaches. With the farm environment fostering his fondness for animals, he enjoyed many experiences with a great variety of farm pets. This led him to his interest in cats where he was inspired to paint a portrait of his favorite feline. Writing his first book in 1989, Henry has alternated between writing whimsical books on animals to more serious books of an environmental and spiritual nature. He has written sixteen books altogether, including three cat books: Cat Guilt, Cat Quips, and Cattitudes. He is a graduate of Guilford College in Greensboro, North Carolina. Dividing his time between writing and the healing arts, he lives near Annapolis, Maryland and has appeared on two national radio shows, NPR and Sirius Radio, reading excerpts of his cat books. www.henryhallsloan.com www.meowabout.com
