It will amuse you whenever you look at it, which is most definitely a positive, normally I never give wall calendars a second thought after I flip to a new month. I still find myself continuously giggling at the inane puns and illustrations. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Funny! By RicardoWitty. I'm a very picky person when it comes to picking my calendar every year. Glad I stumbled upon this one. The jokes are so corny they're great. Would recommend. Already pre-ordered next year's from this guy. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Everyone that got this particular calendar loved the little "cartoons" and some of the folks who ... By PastaCat Gave these cute calendars to several folks for Christmas. Filled in all the dates I thought might be important to the recipients in colorful notations (used thin tip markers and needed to wait a few minutes between months to prevent smudging) highlighting birthdays as well as holidays and other events. Everyone that got this particular calendar loved the little "cartoons" and some of the folks who received one of the other calendar choices requested this on next time. Unique!

Hailing from New York City, illustrator and graphic designer David Olenick delivers LOLs through honest and ironic designs that are derived from, and inspired by, anxiety and uncertainty. In his minimalist renderings, the housecat assures you that if he were bigger he'd tear you apart, the teacup requests that you "Calm the Hell Down," while the despondent umbrella states woefully, "It rains like every time I go outside." Each monthly spread features one of Olenick's clever designs that make it hard to suppress a smile.
