Rebecca Coffey : Love Bites for Valentine's Day: From Nietzsche's Angel Food Cake and Other "Recipes" for the Intellectually Famished before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Love Bites for Valentine's Day: From Nietzsche's Angel Food Cake and Other "Recipes" for the Intellectually

Famished:

When F. Scott Fitzgerald made pickled tomatoes, was it good for the tomatoes, too? When Anas Nin baked hot cross buns, whence came the frosting? What lusty longings did Hermann Rorschach voice while boiling borscht? Was Geoffrey Chaucers Bishop too holy for his stinking tart? And why, oh why did Molly Boom steam James Joyces spotted dick? LOVE BITES FOR VALENTINES DAY (the five recipes herein) are from the acclaimed book NIETZSCHE'S ANGEL FOOD CAKE: And Other Recipes for the Intellectually Famished. But for heavens sake, dont cook with them. They are literary pastiches, humor just for lovers on Valentines Day. But, of course, they are for other kinds of lovers, too, on Valentines Daylovers of literature, history, art, music, and ideas. In fact, theyre for anyone with a good liberal arts education, no matter how vaguely they remember it.
