

(Ebook pdf) The Da Vinci Dog: The Passion, Paintings Slobber of Brinks the Dog

The Da Vinci Dog: The Passion, Paintings Slobber of Brinks the Dog

Paul Amelchenko

*DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF | ePub

Download

Read Online

#3910955 in Books Willow Creek Press 2007-09-24 Original language: English PDF # 1 5.78 x .45 x 6.32l, .43 #File Name: 159543631696 pages | File size: 77.Mb

Paul Amelchenko : The Da Vinci Dog: The Passion, Paintings Slobber of Brinks the Dog before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Da Vinci Dog: The Passion, Paintings Slobber of Brinks the Dog:

3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. The second coming of DavinciBy CustomerIn all honesty I must preface this review with the fact that I've been a friend of Paul's since our days at the University of Miami, so when I heard he was publishing something I knew I had to get it. Even when we were in school, Paul was extremely creative and this book just proves that he hasn't lost the gift. How anyone could look at dog slobber on a window and come up with the idea for a book is beyond me, but not only does Paul do it, he does it in such a way that anyone who owns or has owned a pet will get a chuckle. This book is a definite buy for anyone who loves animals, especially with the generous donation of a portion of the profits to animal charities. Also, with Christmas right around the corner I would recommend this as a gift for anyone who is an animal lover. ZAX3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Brinks...just plain funny. By Paul WojciakI got word of this book through the grapevine. Loved the cover, so I picked it up. Then, I enjoyed this one from the first page up until the end. Now while I don't have a dog myself, there's plenty of friends of mine who do. As I was reading up on and viewing Brinks' "artwork," I could picture every dog owner I know going through the same experiences...and then getting a nice laugh out of itAmelchenko's words mixed with Brink's pictures creates a perfect combination of entertainment. This one's a perfect stocking stuffer, or a perfect coffee-table book. Any way you choose to use it, definitely pick one up. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. If you're a person who likes dogs, or a dog who likes art, you'll like this book. By Kathryn L. Davis, Brinks is truly a master. His book is a delight, and some of his works of art are truly breathtaking. At least for his owners, I'm sure. It takes a special person to recognize the artistic brilliance in a chewed up roll of toilet paper, and lucky for us, Paul Amelchenko is that person. It's a lighthearted book that shows the special bond between Paul and Brinks...and Brinks and his snot. And with a portion of the profits going to Animal Rescue organizations, it would make a great gift for any animal lover on your shopping list. I would definitely recommend it!

Brinks Amelchenko is a 4-year-old yellow Labrador retriever and an accomplished artist. He recently completed his first signature series, "Squirrels - Someday I'll Get You," a ground-breaking expression of canine instinct and unrelenting passion using the peculiar technique of slobber on the panes of glass in French doors. The Da Vinci Dog is a vivid showcase of Brink's stunning works accompanied by his personal musings on his life as an artist.

"Brinks' organic work is a refreshing example of the new generation of eco-conscious artists." "It's fantastic to see an artist enjoy the creative process as much as he enjoys the created product." About the Author In addition to writing funny books about his dog, Paul Amelchenko's advertising work has appeared in the Wall Street Journal and The New Yorker; on NBC, ABC, FOX, CBS and radio nationwide. He's been featured in Create Magazine and earned over 40 creative awards.