Favorite Childhood storyBy NYLynn*I LOVED* this story (in 1st grade) and looked many years for it, having forgotten the title it was quite an undertaking. The story is magical and includes a lesson (of course) and the illustration is creative and captivating. As an adult, the story still resonates and remains near and dear to my heart.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Wonderful bookBy Melissa Angel*Such a great book!* I love the story of the brave little woman chasing her dumpling and laughing along the way. It was one of my favorite books growing up. As a hapa, I loved there was a story like this where the main character was Japanese. The illustrations are beautiful. I purchased this for a friends new baby, so hopefully his baby will grow up loving the story as much as I did.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. My Daughter's New FavoriteBy Mrs. K*My 2 1/2 year old daughter loves this book.* She calls it the 'Te-he-he' book. I'm sure it's all about the laughing right now, but eventually she'll get the good message of the story. I love the illustrations. She calls the woman 'bachan' (grandma in Japanese).And parents please note: 'Te-he-he' is a lot easier to repeat over and over than the tonguetwister Tikki tikki tembo-no sa rembo-chari bari ruchi-pip peri pembo (also a great book).

A giggly lady from Japan chases a rolling rice dumpling and is captured by a fearsome oni. 1973 Caldecott Winner

From the Back CoverIn this tale set in Old Japan, a lively little woman who loves to laugh pursues her runaway dumpling-and must outwit the wicked three-eyed oni when she lands in their clutches.About the AuthorArlene Mosel was born in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1921. She was a librarian and an author who wrote two award-winning children's picture books with Blair Lent: Tikki Tikki Tembo, which won the Boston Globe–Horn Book Award and was an ALA Notable Book as well as a New York Times pick for best children's book, and The Funny Little Woman, which won the Caldecott Medal and a 1974 Hans Christian Andersen International Children's Book Award.
