The pages are only of one female, with no backgrounds except lines and bars.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Singled sided would be betterBy JibbaDouble sided pictures markers impossible0

Now the meditation of colouring images has become a corporeal delight! Lovers of the female form can now idle time away colouring 24 beautiful line illustrations drawn by Rob Hooper. Each of these line artworks were part of a series of Daily Doodles embarked upon by Rob as a discipline to better understand human anatomy and improve his skills as a commercial illustrator . To see Rob's full-colour versions please visit: www.flamingpencil.com/?page_id=1679 as inspiration for your own efforts, and feel free to share your personal efforts on this Facebook page: www.facebook.com/robsdailydoodles/ and show others what you can do! I hope colouring these images will bring as much joy to you as they brought to me. hoop(",)

About the AuthorRob is a self-employed cartoonist and illustrator working from his home in Sandton, South Africa. His areas of speciality are cartoons and illustrations, storyboards, cover designs, character generation and caricatures. He enjoys learning new things and relishes opportunities to engage with new people, situations, technologies and understandings. He has contributed to many projects that have won critical acclaim including awards at the Loeries, ADD and Canadian Art Director's Awards. He works predominantly across the internet. He promotes himself via email, his web site and social media receiving briefs and delivering most of his cartoons via email. He's also a dangerously amateur philosopher, an undisciplined reader, a really useless athlete and a pretty OK drummer. And he talks too much... Rob's online portfolio can be seen at: <http://www.flamingpencil.com> or <https://www.facebook.com/pages/flamingpencilcom/> you can contact him on email: rob@flamingpencil.com He's your quintessential all-round nice guy and if you don't believe it - ask his mum! ;)
