Des MacHale : The Jesus Jokebook before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Jesus Jokebook:

0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. "Jesus Jokebook" By Joseph Klinger Written in non-offensive and good taste. In the words of the compiler of the entries few original jokes. A collection of old chestnuts with a sprinkle of unheard. Question if the content was worth the price!

It's fairly clear that God has a sense of humour: you only have to look at some of his creations to see it! How often have you wanted to say something witty about the son of God when you're slumped in your pew in church, waiting for the priest to hurry up and finish his sermon? Now all your prayers are answered! For the first time ever, here is a book dedicated to jokes about Jesus. All the classics are here, including: It was the morning after the wedding feast of Cana and Joseph had over-indulged in the free wine. He shouted from his bed down to the kitchen, 'Mary, send me up a glass of water, and for God's sake, keep the child away from it this time.

About the Author Des MacHale was born in Castlebar, County Mayo. He is Associate Professor of Mathematics at University College Cork. He lives in Cork with his wife and five children. Humour and humorous quotations are one of Des' passions. He had his own series, The Comedians, on RTE Radio One and is a regular contributor to all forms of media on both mathematics and humour. He has had over thirty humour books published, including the recent A Decapitated Coffee, Please and the hugely successful series of 'Wit' books.
