Tried to get in touch in all the normal ways, but no luck, so I hope you get to read this. John could identify with so much of what you wrote about. Really enjoyed the walk down memory lane and the

receipes.CheersLynne

There are so many people I have to thank for getting this book to publication. But firstly I have to thank "The Bride", Barbie Ann. How she has spent over 40 years with me I have no idea. Not only has she typed the original manuscript, but she has translated it from my Irish gibberish, into reasonable English, without losing the content. Perhaps because she is the only person who can fully understand me. My good friend David Cunningham, has been a fantastic inspiration to me, and has helped enormously. Becky my eldest Granddaughter, who helped us old Farts to understand our computer. Chef, son, and best friend Stephen, who watches out for me at every turn. The friends that I have worked with over the years, and not to forget, without any hesitation, my customers without whom, I would not have had anything to write about.

About the Author If I may introduce myself to you the reader. I am an Irishman, born in Connemara, in 1947, who came to England as a small child. I have lived and worked until now in England, and been in the North East of England for the past 41 years. I am now retired and so have had time to spend on this my first book. I feel I am the luckiest man in the world, I have a wonderful wife, who loves and understands me, two fabulous sons, who I am so very proud of, and four gorgeous Grandchildren. Life could not have been better to me, and I thank God that my work has always been my hobby.
